

Harold Greenwood Thomas Lifetime Achievement

The Harold Greenwood Thomas Lifetime Achievement Award is the most prestigious award presented by the Australian Institute of Health & Safety and may be presented to an individual who has demonstrated outstanding contributions to the field of WHS throughout the course of their career, which has had significant impact on WHS outcomes in Australia.

Eligibility

- Individuals cannot self-nominate for this award
- All applications will normally be proposed and seconded by a current financial member of the AIHS, however other applications proposed and seconded by other respected members of the WHS community will also be considered.

Note: Service to the Institute is not a prerequisite but is viewed favorably when considering a candidate's overall lifetime contribution to the field. Generally, a focus of the AIHS Board and College of Fellows in considering nominees for this award is on distinguished individuals who have made an outstanding long-term contribution over an extended period of their career that has produced a major impact across multiple workplaces. An award is not necessarily made in every year.

Criteria

Primary Criteria	Word count
Demonstrate long term, outstanding and influential contribution to the profession in a specific or generalist area of Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) and Work Health and Safety (WHS), where their work has made a major impact on OHS/WHS outcomes in Australian workplaces.	800 Words
Additional criteria
Can demonstrate long-term voluntary contribution to Health and Safety in or for Australian workplaces; and / or	300 Words
Can demonstrate long-term contribution to the work of the AIHS, and its aims and objectives; and / or	300 Words
Can demonstrate long-term distinguished leadership roles in OHS/WHS that are recognized by peers; and / or	300 Words
Can demonstrate development of significant new knowledge or practice which has contributed directly to healthier and safer Australian workplaces.	300 Words